Protecting Client Data

1.0 ethics credit

SPEAKER

DEAN M. WHALEN, ESQ.
Catugno Court Reporting & StenTel Transcription

SCOTT M. TURECEK
Zix Corporation

Attorneys are bound to safeguard the attorney client privilege and to protect client's personal information. In the past, that simply meant locking the office door at night. Now, the rules of the game are changing as access to information is gained through email and the Internet. This virtual world in an attorney's office creates potentially unsecured vulnerable areas of your practice. This program will provide an overview of the areas of potential vulnerability and specific solutions attorneys can use to ensure protection of client data.

You don't have to be a genius to use a smart phone and tablet computer in your law practice. These devices have many legal applications that can save time and improve service to your clients, if you know what to download and where to find the latest tools. Our presenters have successfully used their devices in family law, real estate, civil litigation, appellate practice, and law practice management.

Bring your gadgets along for a hands-on demonstration of features that will help you get the most from your investment in digital hardware and software.

Using Discovery Strategically—Part 2

1.0 RICLE credit

SPEAKERS

MARSHALL M. RAUCCI, ESQ.
Decot & Decot

AMANDA R. PROSEK, ESQ.
Morrison Mahoney LLP

A deposition presents a unique opportunity to obtain important information and assess the performance of a potential witness. This program will focus on depositions within the context of using discovery strategically to create the best chance for a successful outcome at trial or by settlement. The speakers will include a review of the procedural rules governing depositions, the purpose of taking the deposition as part of a discovery plan, and tips and techniques for effective questioning and handling of difficult witnesses or attorneys. This program will be of particular interest to new practitioners.
